ReAIDP / e-RIAPL

The ReAIDP / e-RIAPL welcomes original articles in English, French or Spanish together with a brief summary (700 characters maximum) of its content. The periodicity of the ReAIDP / e-RIAPL is annual. Each issue is opened in January and closed in December, time throughout which the different works are continuously published.

The submission of a contribution implies the consent for its electronic publishing in the ReAIDP / e-RIAPL.

Authors will specify their titles, occupations and institutional affiliations; they will also indicate their professional address.

The contributions will be sent in file.doc (Word) by electronic mail to readp.eriapl@revelec.org. The text will not exceed 50.000 characters, bibliographical references included.

Submitted articles shall not have been previously published in other periodicals or collective works and shall not be submitted to other periodicals simultaneously. Exceptionally the publication of articles already published in a language different from the official of the ReAIDP / e-RIAPL will be admitted, indicating the reference of the publication in the original language.

All articles sent to the ReAIDP / e-RIAPL are submitted, in view of their publication, to the Editorial Board.

Articles and reports can comprise either bibliographical footnotes or in-text references to a bibliography. According to the style, references will be presented in the following manner.

. Bibliographical footnotes are announced in the body of the text using Arabic numbers put in superscript following a continuous numbering. They are placed at the bottom of each page preceded by the corresponding number.

In the case where a reference already cited is repeated, it shall mention op. cit., followed by the number corresponding to the note where it has been cited the first time.

Whenever a footnote comprises a complete reference to a work or article, it must necessarily be presented in the following manner:

- a) for a book: initial of the first name in uppercase character; last name of the author in uppercase characters; title of the work in lowercase italic (or underlined) characters; place of publication; name of publisher; year of publication (if it happens to be a photocopied document, the title will not be underlined);
- b) for an article taken from a periodical : initial of the first name in uppercase character; last name of the author in uppercase characters; title of the article in lowercase roman characters (or not underlined); title of the periodical eventually abbreviated according to the international index; year of publication, part or volume number; issue number; pagination;
- c) for a contribution to a collective work: the same presentation as in the preceding case applies, except that the mention for the work cited is preceded by in.;
- d) for a collective work: the same presentation as for a book applies except that the name of the author is followed by (ed.).

. In-text references to a bibliography are announced between brackets in the body of the text (or in the notes, if it is an internal reference to a note) in the following manner: the name of the author in lowercase characters; year of publication of the cited text; pagination if required. Ex.: (Beccaria, 1764, p. 25).

Whenever the style of in-text references to a bibliography is used, the bibliography is included at the end of the text following the alphabetical order of the author and, in case where many references from one author are used, following the chronological order of publication.

Do not number those references. Those are to be presented in the manner explained for the bibliographical footnotes above (cf. supra), except that the initial of the first name must follow the author's name and must be preceded by a comma.

When an article is presented, the first and last page will be indicated (ex.: pp. 22-64).

- Regarding references to legislations and jurisprudence, authors shall use the international reference method.
